

ALLIANCE BANK'S BUSINESS PROCESS

I. Checking account

1. What is a checking account?

If you're looking to open a bank account online for your everyday needs, a checking account may be the way to go. A checking account is often used for day-to-day deposits and withdrawals. With a checking account, you can access your money with a debit card, through bank wire transfers or by writing checks.

Checking accounts hold your money in a safe place so when you need it, it's available. You can use it to pay your bills and other expenses. Your paycheck can also be sent to your checking account through direct deposit.

When it comes to saving for short- or long-term goals, a savings account may be a better option in this scenario. A checking account often allows for numerous withdrawals and deposits. Some savings accounts have a limited number of monthly withdrawals allowed and can impose a fee for going over this limited number of monthly savings withdrawals.

2. Checking account fees to be aware of

Most checking accounts have a monthly service fee. There are typically ways to waive monthly service fees if you meet certain requirements. Other fees may apply, such as out-of-network ATM fees and overdraft fees.

3. How to open a checking account online

There are a few basic steps you'll need to follow to open a checking account online.

a. Compare and select the account type

The first step in opening a checking account online is to choose the type of account you want to open and compare it to others. There are different accounts that'll fit different needs, so consider the purpose of the account. When picking an account, be aware of its available banking methods, fees and benefits it may offer. Available banking methods can include online, mobile, in-person and more.

b. Review the agreement

Bank accounts come with terms and conditions, so you'll want to read through them before you apply. These terms and conditions generally cover included fees, rates, and important information about the account.

c. Apply for a checking account online

You can apply for most checking accounts online if you're 18 or older by going to the bank's website and filling out the application. The application will ask for basic information about yourself as well as submitting some documents for verification.

Once the application is complete, you may receive an email regarding what to do next. The checking account is subject to approval.

4. What you need to open a checking account online

a. Verify your identity

There are a few documents you will need to open a checking account whether it is online or in-person. Banks and other financial institutions may have different checking account requirements. If you are a U.S. citizen or non-U.S. citizen residing in the U.S., here's a list of a few documents you may need to open your account. However, check with your financial institution to determine what documents you will need. Identification: This could be a valid:

- Government issued photo ID or driver's license
- Social security card or Individual Taxpayer Identification Number
- Passport
- Birth Certificate
- Proof of Address: It must show your name and address of your residence.

This could be a current and valid:

- Lease document
- Mortgage document
- Utility bill
- Bank statement or credit card statement

b. Make an opening deposit

Some accounts require new account holders to make an opening deposit. This deposit can be made using an account and routing number to transfer funds from another bank account or with a check or money order. You can also visit a branch to deposit cash.

c. Activate your debit card

Since checking accounts are typically linked to debit cards, you'll need to activate your card before using it. This can be done online or over the phone, or at the bank's ATM. Usually, mailed separately from your debit card, you will receive a personal identification number (PIN) that is used when making debit card transactions.

d. Start using your account

Once the bank finishes setting up your account, it's ready to go. You'll now be able to make deposits, withdrawals and any other features that come with your account. Opening a checking account online is just one way to help manage your money. Compare Chase checking accounts to select the one that best fits your needs.

II. Changing your contact details

If you want to change your email, phone number or home address, you can do so from the Alliance mobile app:

1. Tap the profile icon in the top left corner of the 'Home' section
2. Tap 'See details'
3. Tap 'Edit' next to either:
 - Email address
 - Phone number
 - Home address

4. Follow the steps on screen to make a change.

You'll see your updated address on statements from the following month.

If you want to change any other details, such as your name or tax residence, just call or chat to us from the 'Support' section of app and we'll take care of it.

You'll also need to contact us if you're moving to a new address outside the UK or switching to a non-UK phone number.

III. Dispute a transaction:

1. How do I stop or cancel a charge?

The quickest way to stop or cancel a charge is to contact the merchant directly. If the charge posts and you wish to dispute, you may sign in to Chase.com or call the number on the back of your credit card.

2. Can I dispute a pending charge?

Credit card: Charge must be posted in order for a dispute to be opened. Pending charges generally post within 1-3 business days. If the charge posts and you wish to dispute, you may do so online at Chase.com or call the number on the back of your credit card.

Debit card: You can call us at 1-866-346-2282 to initiate a debit card dispute for a pending transaction. You'll need to wait for the debit card transaction to post before you can dispute it online.

3. How long do I have to dispute a charge?

Submit your dispute within 60 days of the transaction first appearing on your statement.

4. How long will it take to resolve a dispute?

The time it takes to resolve your dispute depends on the type of dispute and the merchant, but it may take up to 90 days for credit card and/or debit card disputes. Keep in mind, disputes are often resolved more quickly if you contact the merchant first.

5. Can I cancel a dispute I already submitted?

To cancel a dispute, call the number on the back of your card. We also accept operator relay calls.

6. Do I have to pay the disputed amount while the credit card dispute is being investigated?

You are not required to pay for transactions and associated interest or fees that are being disputed and under investigation. While the transaction is in dispute, this amount will be removed from your required payment until it is resolved.

However, you are still responsible for paying at least the minimum payment due for your remaining undisputed balance.

7. Will I have access to the disputed funds while the debit card dispute is being investigated?

Most of the time, a provisional credit will be applied to the account while we investigate the debit card dispute. This usually occurs within 48 hours but may take up to 10 business days.
